

CPHC Conference: 7th-8th April 2014

'Future of Computing' Session

Chris Millward

As Associate Director at the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE), Chris is responsible for HEFCE's policy and funding on postgraduate education and on strategically important and vulnerable subjects. He also leads the institutional team with responsibility for engaging with universities and colleges in the North of England and with the Open University. Prior to joining HEFCE in 2006, Chris was an Associate Director at the Arts and Humanities Research Council (AHRC) and worked at the universities of Durham, Edinburgh and Warwick. Chris is a graduate from the universities of Warwick and Manchester.